(1) THE order of the GARTER is the most noble and antient of all the secular orders in the world; it was instituted in 1350, by that heroic prince King Edward III. who called it the order of the garter, as that was the only part of the habit of the order first worn, as a tie of affection and love for each other; and to prove the sovereign's honourable intentions, the motto, Honi soit qui mal y pense, Evil be to him that evil thinks, was wrote on it in French, which was then the most familiar court language, the king being possessed of great part of France.

This noble order consists of the sovereign of Great Britain, and 25 companions, who are usually installed on St. George's day, their patron, in Windsor chapel. The garter is worn on the left leg, between the knee and the calf, the colour blue, enriched with gold, pearls, precious stones, and a buckle of gold; they wear also a broad blue ribband over the left shoulder, brought under the right arm, with St. George's picture at the bottom, enamelled and set with diamonds. The left side of their coats is also adorned with the sun in its glory, of silver embroidery, commonly called a star, and at high feasts they commonly wear a surtout, a mantle, a cap, a collar of SS, composed of roses enamelled red, within a garter enamelled blue; the motto in letters of gold. This society is a college or corporation, having a great seal, besides the seal of the sovereign. The bishop of Winchester is prelate, the bishop of Salisbury chancellor, and the dean of Windsor register of the order. The other two officers are Garter king of Arms, and the Usher of the Black Rod.

The society maintain at Windsor 18 decayed gentlemen, called the poor knights of Windsor, with a yearly allowance of 40*l.* each. Since this order was instituted, there have been of it 8 emperors of Germany, 30 foreign kings, and a multitude of other sovereign princes.

The present knights are as follow according to their election.

About two years after its institution, this king died, and the order was dropt till the time of James II. who created eight knights; but the revolution unsettled it again, and it was neglected, till queen Anne in 1703. restored it to its primitive number of twelve, being also further improved by king George I. The ensigns are the image of St. Andrew vested in cloth of gold, with the white cross of martyrdom on his breast, pending to the collar of the order, and is worn on the 30th of November, and other extraordinary occasions. The collar is of gold, fashioned into thistles and sprigs of rue linked together, enamelled, the one not to be handled without being hurt, and the other an antidote against infection: whence the motto, Nemo me impune lacessit. The knight wears a cross and thistle on the left breast, and a green ribband spread over the left shoulder, and brought under the right arm, at the bottom of which is the image of St. Andrew. Henry IV. founded this order in 1399, and being revived by king George I. in 1725. was improved and made a military order for 35 knights beside the sovereign. The symbol is a sceptre, three imperial crowns, with a rose and thistle in a circle of gold, and this motto, Tria juncta in uno; which badge, and a crimson ribband, is daily worn as the knights of the garter do theirs.

About two years after its institution, this king died, and the order was dropt till the time of James II. who created eight knights; but the revolution unfetttled it again, and it was neglected, till queen Anne in 1703. restored it to its primitive number of twelve, being also further improved by king George I. The ensigns are the image of St. Andrew vested in cloth of gold, with the white cross of martyrdom on his breast, pending to the collar of the order, and is worn on the 30th of November, and other extraordinary occasions. The collar is of gold, fashioned into thistles and sprigs of rue linked together, enamelled, the one not to be handled without being hurt, and the other an antidote against infection: whence the motto, Nemo me impune lacessit. The knight wears a cross and thistle on the left breast, and a green ribband spread over the left shoulder, and brought under the right arm, at the bottom of which is the image of St. Andrew. The present knights are;

(3) The knights of the BATH are so called from their bathing, used before they were created. Henry IV. founded this order in 1399, and being revived by king George I. in 1725. was improved and made a military order for 35 knights beside the sovereign. The symbol is a sceptre, three imperial crowns, with a rose and thistle in a circle of gold, and this motto, tria juncta in uno; which badge, and a crimson ribband, is daily worn as the knights of the garter do theirs.

The present knights of the Bath, are

Tho-

Thomas Ripley, esq; surveyor of the works; and Mr. Wm. Robinson, storekeeper, and clerk of the works.

The steward is allowed 3 clerks, whose business is to supply the pensioners with provision; to receive and deliver out the house-stores; to keep a muster book of the entries and discharges of men, and to make up the monthly accounts.

The clerk of the cheque is to inspect all stores and provisions, as to their goodness, according to contract; to examine and sign all accounts before they are brought to the directors.

The surgeon is allowed two assistants, and a servant.

The twentyfour directors meet once in ten days, or oftener, as occasion requires, appointed by the lords of the admiralty; and every director, before his admittance, produces his warrant from the admiralty.

Hon. Daines Barrington is secretary to this board, and allowed 200l per ann. his clerk 40l.

There is a council once a week, for the government of the house, to rectify all complaints, and disorder.

The matrons are to take care of the men's linen, to see it mended and washed, and to see the nurses clean the wards.

The diet for sick men is eggs, butter, sugar, currants, rice-pudding, oatmeal, tripe, milk, mutton, veal, bread and beer.

The pensioners are all clothed in blue, once in two years; and are allowed linen, stockings, shoes, and twelve-pence a week for necessaries; out of which number there are 60 boatswains, distinguished by having gold lace upon their cloaths and hats; they are allowed 2s. 6d. a week. Their business is to take care of the wards, and that the men do their duty; also to command the watch on their guard. There are 120 boatswains mates, who have a narrow edging upon their hats, to be known from the other pensioners, and have 1s. 6d. a week.

The diet for pensioners and servants daily, is for each one pound of bread, and two quarts of beer. Sundays and Tuesdays they have one pound of mutton each, with broth, and a quarter pound of cheese: Monday, Thursday, and Saturday, one pound of beef each, with broth, and a quarter pound of cheese: Wednesday and Friday, pease porridge, with one ounce of butter, and half a pound of cheese.

There are 120 boys, the sons of disabled seamen, who are maintained with the money arising by shewing the hospital and chapel; they wear blue, and have the same allowance as at Christ-hospital. They are taken in between eleven and thirteen years of age, and after three years go out to captains of men of war, and merchantmen.

The manner of their going to chapel on a holiday.

First, The teacher of the Mathematicks walks before; the boys follow two and two after him, with the mathematical instruments in their hands; then the porter, with his staff, walks before the governor, captain, and chaplains; then the boatswains and mates, with the colours and halberts; after them the drums beating; then the pensioners, two and two.

The pensioners have then a double allowance of meat, and two quarts of ale. When they are at dinner, and the music playing, the officers of the house go in, and drink the king's health. While they drink the drums beat, and the men give three huzzas: so likewise the same at the healths of the prince and princess of Wales, the duke, the princesses, and all the royal family; the lords of the admiralty, and the governors.

The boys have roast beef, and ale.

Commissioners of Trade and Plantations. 1696.

This Board of Trade and Plantations was first established by King William of glorious memory, in pursuance of a scheme prepared by John Locke, esq; and Mr. Penn, son of Sir William Penn. The commissioners are eight, and all members of the house of Commons, except the first, who is a peer and a privy councillor.

The charges of post letters from the plantations, and for clerks, messengers and doorkeepers are paid by the treasury. The business of this board is to examine into the state of the British foreign trade, more particularly our American plantations. They meet every Day except Saturday, Sunday, and Monday. They revise all laws passed in the plantations, and after examining them, and taking the advice of his Majesty's attorney or solicitor general, or of Mr. Fane, one of his Majesty's Council at law, appointed for that purpose, make their report to his Majesty in council, and accordingly they are allowed or disallowed. They also prepare the commissions and instructions of all governors, deputy governors, and secretaries going abroad; and it is likewise committed to them to look out for proper persons to fill these offices, and recommend them to his Majesty. No matters of controversy come judicially before them, but they are first referred, and then they only report their opinion; upon which his Majesty proceeds as he thinks most proper.
